FOES OF IMMORALITY.

Important Topics Discussed by the American Purity Alliance. Boston, Dec. 10.—At the second day conference of the American Purity Alliance today Aaron M. Powell of New York, president of the Alliance, presided. The first paper was by Elbridge T. Gerry of New York, read by Mrs. Anna Rice Powell, on and by Mrs. Anna Rice Powen, or child immortality. It exhaustively con-sidered the numerous phases of the evil. The second paper was by Rev. Antomette Browne Blackwell on the "Immortality of the Regulation System." The objections orged were that it accepts and condones wrong doings.

was arged that poverty is a profile source of immorality and crime and that by carting for the poor much can be accomplished in the way of removing crime.

At the afternoon session Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell read a paper entitled "Saggestions on Purity Work Derived From English Experience," and was followed by Corresponding Secretary Anna Rice Powell, in a paper outlining "The American Purity Alliance and its Work." Other papers that occupied the halance of the ession included "Rescue Work," by Dr. Julia A. Flammer; "Slavery's Legacy of Impurity," Martha Schofield, Alken, S. C. The closing session was held this evening. Papers were read on "The Sacredness of Fatherhood," by Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., Plainfield, N. J.; and upon "The Religious Aspects of the Purity Movement," by Rev. S. H. Virgin, D. D., of New York.

UMPIRE'S DECISION SUSTAINED. Basketball League Meeting Makes

Rules to Purify a Popular Game. Au enthusiastic and well attended special needing of the District Basketball League was held last night in the armory of the military eye sits of the District National Guards at Pith and L streets. Delegates from all the organizations in the league were present as follows: Cycle Corps, Messrs, Libbey, Alexander and Wiggin; Corcoran Cadets, Mr. Gumiel; Light Infantry, Miler, House, McCaba Wiggli; Corcuran Cadets, Mr. Gumen; Lagni Infantry, Miler, House, McCabe and E. Schaffrt; Potomac Wheelmen, Greene, Wiesbader and F. Raab; Carroll Institute, Manrice Joyce; Y. M. C. A., Tade and Monk; Washington Athletic Club, Martin and Wilkerson and Wilkerson.

The principal object of the meeting was to take action upon the protest filed by the Potomac Wheelmen against the impire's decision given in the league game played on the 3rd instant by the Wheelmen and the Light Infantry teams in the gymna sium of the latter, wherein Umpire Sydney Bieber disqualified one of the Wheelmen, apon which the team left the field before the game was completed, and the score the game was completed, and the score standing 6 to 1 against it.

Upon a full discussion of all the facts in the case, the motion of Mr. Wilkerson of the Washington Athletic Club prevailed by a vote of 10 to 5 that the decision of the umpire be sustained and that the game stand as recorded, 6 to 1 in favor of the Legatre.

pan out as expected, owing to the fact of a quorum not being present. There were only five members of the clab present and fifteen are necessary before any business can be transacted. It was therefore decided to postpone the meeting until four weeks from last night.

The meeting was the regular annual meeting of the stockholders, and while the question of a race meet at the Bennings track next spring may be brought up, it is not likely that any action will be taken in regard to it until a special meeting for that purpose is called.

New officers of the clab will also be elected at the annual meeting. As S. S. elected at the annual meeting. As S. S. Howland now controls the majority of the stock, any plans that he may propose will probably be carried out.

ege, which was sustained by the Speaker. The resolution declares that Ambassado Bayard, in his speech, at Edinburgh, de-clared that in his own country he had witnessed the insatiable growth of that form of state socialism, tion, which he believed had done more to foster class legislation, and create inequality of fortune, to corrupt public life, to banish men of independent mind and character from the public councils, to ower the tope of national representation lower the tone of national representation, blunt public conscience, create false standards in the popular minds, to fa-miliarize it with reliance upon State aid and guardianship in private affairs, di-vorce etnics from politics, and place poli-tics upon the low level of mercenary scramble, than any other single cause.

"It was incorrect to speak of protection as a national policy, for that it could never be, because it never could be other than the fostering of special interests at the expense of the rest and this overthrew the great principle of equality before the law, and that resultant sense of justice and equilty in the administra-tion of sovereign powers, which was the sense of domestic tranquility and bunnan contentment.

"The enfeeblement of individual energies and the impairment of many self-reliances hef in mysteries of the state, and a re hance upon them took the place of in-dividual exertion, fostered the growth of state socialism and pyrsonal liberty ceased to be the great end of the governo

Inhisspeech delivered at Boston, England,
Mr. Bayard is quoted as having said:
"The President stands in the midst of a strong, self-confident and often times violent people, men who desire to have their own way, and who need to have that way frequently obstructed and way frequently obstructed, and I tell you plainly, it takes a real man to govern the people of the United States."

MR. DINGLEY AROUSED. In the course of his remarks on the resolution Mr. Dingley said his judgment was that such language used in a foreign country by an ambassador of the United States was an impeachable offense. (Re publican appeause.) Whether it was wise to impeach Mr. Bayard was another ques-tion. But he had no doubt that the offense was an impeacable one, and ought to be.

If United States ambassadors violated the proprieties of their position in this way an example should be made by impeaching one of them. He regretted that a question of this kind should take a a question of this and sound take a partisan turn. It was not a question be-tween the advocates of protection and the advocates of free trade, but simply as to the propriety of the conduct of a United States ambassador in a foreign country. He could not believe that there was a could not believe that there was a single geatleman on the other side of the chamber who would approve of the principle of a United States ambassador going on the platform in a foreign country and denouncing a policy sustained by at least one-half of the people of this country.

He thought an expression should be made by the House of Bourgardialized.

by the House of Representatives con-demning-such a course by a United States ambessedor; that a person so violating the properties of his position should be recalled, and that one be sent in his place who would have some regard for the proprieties of his official position. There ought to be no difference of opinion as to the propriety and the necessity of con-AMOS CUMMINGS' INNING.

Mr. Cummings, Dem., N. Y., said he had no particular love for the United States ambassador to England. He had not for-gotten that Mr. Bayard had not done what he should have done toward the release of Irish prisoners, citizens of the United States, were unjustly incarcerated in Eng lish prisons.

He had not forgatten that Mr. Bayard was a welcome guest in the House of the English aristocracy and was but rarely invited to a Liberal banquet; but at the same time he should be treated with justhe by even the Republican members of the House.

What had been read from Mr. Bayard' remarks resembled very much what had been read from executive documents; and Mr. Bayard had only been reiterating that which the President of the United States had repeatedly declared in his messages and in his letters to Congress. If the United States ambassador at London ought to be impeached for expressing such scattments, then the President of the United States ought to be impeached. If the resolution was not offered unless false pretenses, why did not the gentleman from Massachusetts bring in a resolution impeaching the President?

SEEK THE SOURCE. "Go to the fountain head, gentiemen," Mr. Cummings exclaimed. "You have been taking it here for nearly eight years from the residuat of the United States, and not a whisper have we heard of impeachment. But the instant that a United States ambassador in a foreign country repeats the same sentiments, there is a hue and cry for impeachment. "There is nothing in it, gentlemen. It is only opening the tariff delate at the present session of Congress. That is all.

You are getting in early, my friends. You will have plenty of time later on."

Mr. McCreary, Dem., Kentucky, said that when Congress assembled it was confronted with grave and important responsibilities, and the people had hoped there would be legislation to ameliorate existing difficulties. But now, even when the committees had not been announced and when the regular organization of the House had not been completed, the first step taken by Republicans was to bring in a resolution for the impeachment of "n American am-You are getting in early, my friends. You for the impeaciment of co American am-bassador, simply in order that a few gen-tiemen might air their rhetoric and present to the country their views on the protec-tive tariff.

The resolution was, he declared, a miserable excuse for a debate on a subject which representatives seemed to be afraid to bring up in the regular style. Mr. Bayard had spoken nothing but the simple truth, and there was nothing in what he said that would justify impeachment. DIPLOMATIC DUTIES DEFINED.

Mr. Barrett called on Mr. Hitt, Rep., Ill., formerly identified with the State Depart ment, to say what the instructions to diplo matic and consular officers were.

Mr. Hitt stated substantially that diplomatic officers abroad were especially cau-tioned to use the greatest reserve in all the ic public speeches to any dispute between the public succeies to any disjute between the United States and any other government; and better still to avoid public speeches whenever that could be done. Mr. Money, Dem., Miss., charged that gentlemen on the other side of the House were not acting ingenuously in their as-sault on Mr. Bayard, and he reminded them sant on Mr. Bayard, and he ramined them that there was "no hecessity for a football rush." The matter might, at least, be de-ferred until the House had an opportunity to ascertain what had been Mr. Bayard's language. Until that was done, the House was not acting fairly toward a man who had, in the highest degree, represented abroad, the character, intelligence and pairiotism of the American people.

Mr. Cannon, Rep., Ill., thought that the resolution should be referred to the Company of the control of the company of the control of th mittee on Foreign Affairs. He doubted that Mr. Eayard ought to be impeached—as a matter of policy.

PAVORED A CENSURE. If Mr. Bayard made the remarks at tributed to him, and if the President of the United States did not recall him promptly, it was the duty of the American House of Representatives, in an orderly manner, to express its disapproval of such setion by words of censure. Mr. Turner, Dem., Ga., did not believe that Mr. Bayard's language constituted even an impropriety.

Mr. Grow, Rep. Fennsylvania, recalled the incident when, during the civil war, an English gentleman, taking with Charles Francis Adams, the American minister to London, made a remark as to the Confederates lighting well, to which Mr. Adams made the felicitous reply: "They are my countrynen." (Appliause.)

Mr. Hitt suggested the omission from the resolution of the word "impeachment."

Mr. Barrett consented to make that nodification in the resolution, but objection was made by Mr. Crisp.

The Speaker suggested to Mr. Crisp that Mr. Barrett had the right to modify his resolution, to which Mr. Crisp, in momentary forgetfaliness of his changed position in the House, remarked: "The chair thinks not"— the words being followed by an outburst of laughter all over the House.

Mr. Barrett closed the debate in a speech, in which he declared it to be his purpose to scere, if possible, "the recall of a man who has put himself on record in a way to hamiliate and disgrace the proudest people in the world.' BARRETT GIVES NOTICE. In conclusion Mr. Barrett sald: "I ask of this House, even at this early part of the session, an expression which shall be notice to all our diplomatic representatives abroad that, even it they may be in accord with the ideas of the administration, such expressions are not in accord with the opinion of the House of Representatives, but are in viola-tion of their instructions, in violation of international law, in absolute disregard of the dignity of the people, and that such utter-ances shall not be heard without a stern re-buke from the House of Representatives." (Applause from the Republican side of the chamber.)

Mr. Crisp's motion to refer the resolu-tion to the Committee on the Judiciary was rejected—ayes, 80; nocs, 206. Mr. Crisp asked a vote by the yeas and mays and it was taken, resulting: Yeas, 90; nnys, 207.

The Speaker stated that, by consent, the preamble to the resolution would be con-sidered withdrawn, and announced the appointment of the following Committee on Accounts: Mr. Aldrich of Illinois, chair man; Messrs. Odell of New York, McCall of Tennessec. Tracy of Missourt, and Long of Kansas, Republicans, and Messrs. Rusk of Maryland, and Price of Louisiana, Demo-
